Bandit & Charlie Raise Funds for PTSD

To give: justgiving.com

Last year Charlie Hammerton, a former serviceman in the UK, trekked the 84-mile Hadrian's Wall with his ferret, Bandit, and raised nearly £4,000 for the disease that had killed his mom. His success has led Charlie to continue fundraising walks with his little friend.

On September 16, he will be walking from a World War II drop zone for supplies & skydivers in Holland to Arnhem Bridge, where British airborne troops fought against overwhelming odds in 1944. The walk is to raise money for Combat Stress, a charity that offers free treatment to service people suffering from PTSD, depression, or anxiety.

Charlie recently opened up about his own PTSD after serving in the Royal Air Force. He so appreciates the help he received that he wants to help others. His goal is £1,000 (about $1,200 US). Bandit is a big part of his walks, charming supporters and keeping Charlie company. "Bandit has his own passport and is ready to go," said Charlie.

Right now Charlie's site has raised £638 of his £1,000 goal.

Adopt me?

Too cute! Poppy and her friend Clover arrived right before July 4th. Their owner had a drug issue; they were left behind. These nice girls are both between 1-2 years old and must have a home together. However, both like other ferrets and would be a great addition to an existing ferret family. Please complete our adoption application and they can go home with YOU!

Have to Evacuate?

We hope you keep safe! Please be sure to take your furry family with you. You may not be able to return home quickly and new laws REQUIRE emergency centers to accept pets. Be sure to bring their food, any medications, and shot records if you can.

Seen the ads for Good RX, the free discount site? They allow you to search pharmacies in your area for the best medication price, PLUS give you coupons to take to the drug store when filling prescriptions. Well, there's a PET Good RX, too! There can be a BIG difference in prices for the same drug at different pharmacies.

A member recently used Good RX and found the best local price for her dog's medicine, saving $8 on a common medication. Think what the savings might be for a really expensive drug!
